MINIATURE GLADIOLUS

The small flowered varieties are now the rage of the Gladiolus world. They have become so popular at the shows that there often isn't enough table space for them. Perhaps one reason for the popularity of miniature Glads is the ease with which they can be used in flower arrangements, especially table pieces. We supply the miniatures in medium bulbs as this size produces the best flowers for arrangement work. The demand is so great, and the supply so limited, we can only offer these gems in the following collections.

COLLECTION J

FLUFFY RUFFLES. Charming little cream, all ruffled and frilled.

MAZIE. Flashy little orange, lighter throat.

FADDIST. A beautiful little pink.

STARLET. Really white, clean and clear. Beautiful subjects for arrangements.

REMARKS:

A Few Suggestions For Growing Fine Gladiolus

Gladiolus may be planted any time from early spring to June. Planting at intervals will prolong the blooming season. Orders for bulbs should reach us before May 1st as our warehouse closes at that time.

Any good garden soil is satisfactory but must be well drained. If commercial fertilizer is used it should be mixed with the soil. If manure is used it should not come in contact with the bulb. Plant gladiolus bulbs from five to six inches deep.

We recommend that all bulbs you plant be treated at planting time. A Lysol dip is effective against thrips; mix 1 1/2 table-spoonfuls of Lysol with one gallon of water and soak bulbs for three hours. Plant immediately after dip.

If thrips are prevalent in your community and some of your neighbors may not have treated their bulbs, it will be wise to start spraying or dusting your plants when they are about six to eight inches high, using either a water soluble 50% DDT spray or 5% DDT dust.

Gladiolus require plenty of water, especially during the four or five weeks before they bloom or after the fourth or fifth leaf shows. Do not give the plants a light daily sprinkling—really soak them down about once a week.

When cutting flowers, always leave at least four or five leaves on the plant to mature the bulb.

Digging may be done any time from a month to six weeks after blooming. Should foliage begin to turn brown, dig at once. Cut the tops close to the bulb and dry in any partially sunny place for a few days. Store bulbs for two or three weeks in a dry place until the old bulb and roots can be easily removed. The husks should be left on the bulb for added protection.

Before the final winter storage, bulbs should be dusted with 5% DDT powder. Bulbs may be thoroughly coated by shaking in a paper bag with a small quantity of DDT dust. Store for the winter in a frost-proof, cool, dry place, preferably at a temperature as near 45 to 50 degrees as possible.

How to Grow Exhibition Begonias

For early flowering put tubers during March and April in a warm place in open trays at a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees. Moisten slightly once in a while until they come to life. As they begin sprouting, plant in flats in a mixture of peat and sand, leaf mold and sand, or peat alone, all of which are good media for developing a root system. Plant three to four inches apart one-half inch below the surface. Keep uniformly moist but not too wet, at a temperature as above and well lighted, until three or four inches of growth develop. Then, if all danger of frost is past they may be planted outdoors in a permanent location, or potted. The front of the plant is always where the tips of the leaves are pointing. Often if dormant tubers are planted in open ground, especially if it is too cold or wet, they may rot in the ground, or the plants will be facing in haphazard ways. Started first in flats, they will develop a splendid root system which is necessary for the forming of fine specimen plants.

Transplanting into open ground or pots should be done before the plants get too large and crowded, being careful not to disturb the root system more than necessary. Any light soil with a lot of humus will grow good Begonias; heavy soils should have a liberal application of well rotted manure, leaf mold or sand thoroughly mixed. Very light soil will benefit with an application of peat, leaf mold or well rotted manure. A lighter soil should be used in pots than when planted outdoors. A shady spot should be selected outdoors, such as under trees or the north side of a building where the direct sunlight cannot reach them.

For well-grown specimens additional feeding will be required; fish or cottonseed meals give fine results. Mix these with the soil that goes into the lower half of the pots, about a tablespoonful for a six-inch pot. For outdoor planting a tablespoonful mixed with the soil in the lower half of the planting hole for small plants, additional for larger plants. If the fertilizer comes in contact with the stems or leaves it may cause a mold to develop which will eventually destroy the plant.

After transplanting, gentle overhead watering is best until plants are well established. Too heavy watering during the young stage may pack the soil, thereby causing it to go sour. Later, when the plants are in full growth, they will require a steady supply of moisture as the root system is shallow and any drying out will give a setback to normal development.

In autumn, when the foliage turns yellow or is blackened by the first frost, take out, wash off all soil, taking care not to bruise the tubers, dry in sunlight for a day or two until thoroughly dry; then store in open flats in a cool, dry place. See that all particles of the old stem are removed until healthy tissue shows; otherwise, if left on, they will decay and destroy the tuber.

CAMELLIA FLOWERED TUBEROUS BEGONIA

TUBEROUS BEGONIAS AMONG THE SHOWIEST OF FLOWERS

McLean's extra large exhibition Begonia tubers are back again. Our top size bulbs are at least two inches across. These big plump tubers are full of vigor—ready to give the exhibition plants you demand.

Our large size tubers (1½ to 2" in diameter) produce just as large blooms but the plants will be slightly smaller.

Double Camellia Type

The most popular type with flowers 5 to 8 inches across, resembling camellias and roses in all forms and variations of color. Available in the following colors or McLean's Superb Mixture:

WHITE

ORANGE

ROSE

SINGLE FRILLED TUBEROUS BEGONIA

Crispa – Single Frilled

Produces large, profusely frilled and ruffled flowers of the single type. Same color selection as Camellia type.

Top Size.....Three $1.25, Six $2.40, Doz. $4.50

Large.....Six $1.85, Doz. $3.50, 25 $6.50

Marmorata Type

A very beautiful type of Camellia Begonias. While the flowers are not quite as large as the Camellia type, the plants are very floriferous, being literally covered with blooms. The flowers are produced on strong stems that hold the flowers upright. The mottled effect of white and deep rose is most attractive and novel. The foliage is clear bright green. We urge you to include a few in your order.

Top Size.....Three $1.25, Six $2.40, Doz. $4.50

Hanging Basket Type

An unsurpassed strain producing DOUBLE FLOWERS ONLY. Each bulb produces great masses of tiny Camellia type flowers. Excellent for porches, etc. Mixed colors only.

PICOTEE TYPE TUBEROUS BEGONIA

ACIDANTHERA

ABYSSINIAN FRAGRANT GLADS

This little known member of the Iris family is somewhat similar to gladiolus, but it is fragrant. The chocolate-brown throat markings accentuate the creamy white petals. Plant the same as gladiolus; corms are smaller.

Top Size

Six $0.95, Doz. $1.75, 25 $3.25

CANNAS

Cannas are unexcelled for large borders; their foliage is most attractive. They can be grown in almost any soil but prefer one that is rather heavy. Plant four to six inches deep. Where there is danger of freezing they should be dug after the first frost, then stored the same as Dahlias.

AMBASSADOR. Brilliant orange-scarlet. Foliage dark green. About 4 feet high.

CALLA LILIES

Callas should be planted from January to April in good average garden soil, possibly in slightly shaded places in the warmer districts. Plant the roots about four inches deep and keep well supplied with moisture during the growing season.

WHITE CALLA. Giant flowered type.

Three $1.00, Six $1.85, Doz. $3.50

POMPON DAHLIAS

DAHLIAS

Dahlias thrive in any good garden soil which is well drained. Compost or well rotted cow manure will add desired humus to the soil, but do not allow the manure to come in contact with the tubers. They like a sunny location; water only when the ground is quite dry and then soak it thoroughly.

Plant when danger of frost is past; set a stake beside each tuber. Plant tubers horizontally with the "eye" or sprout facing up, from 4 to 6 inches deep.

ANEMONE ST. BRIGID

TIGRIDIAS

TIGRIDIAS

Tigridias are one of the most interesting members of the bulb family, producing the most gorgeous and brilliantly colored flowers of many shades. While the individual bloom lasts but one day, the blooms continue to come. A top size bulb will produce from nine to fifteen blooms under favorable conditions.

Tigridias require a cool, moist spot in the garden. They may be grown in almost any section of the United States, in any good garden soil. They require an abundance of moisture but must have good drainage. Plant bulbs four to six inches deep after ground becomes warm in the spring.

When used as cut flowers the stalks should be cut the evening before blooming. If they are allowed to remain in water new blooms will appear at intervals of two or three days.

Our Tigridias are grown from seed, which seldom produces the same flower as the parent; therefore, no assurance can be given as to colors contained in any particular order filled.

Top Size Six $0.95, Doz. $1.75, 25 $3.25
